Mr. Herndon: "Thank you very much. Mr. Speaker, Representatives: It is an honor to be with you this morning. This is my first trip to North Dakota and I bring you greetings from all the Okies back at home and on behalf of the organization I represent, the Future Farmers of America. We have currently nearly a half million members in fifty states and Puerto Rico in over 8,200 local high school programs, vocational agriculture, in the Future Farmers of America. So we have a big job this year and we appreciate very much the things that you're doing for young people in preparing for their futures in agriculture, in agri-business and all types of related fields. I've been convinced as I've been traveling across the nation of the importance of education. And I think the things that I've seen this year and the things that I've seen this morning in your State Capitol have certainly been encouraging to me because of your stance for young people in their preparations for the future.

"I say again, thank you, and I certainly do appreciate the things that you're doing. So best of luck as you wrap up your session here. Thanks again. Take care."
