

JOURNAL OF THE HOUSE

Fifty-ninth Legislative Assembly

* * * * *

Bismarck, January 31, 2005

The House convened at 1:00 p.m., with Speaker Klein presiding.

The prayer was offered by Pastor Keith Ritchie, Cornerstone Community Church of Bismarck.

The roll was called and all members were present except Representatives DeKrey, Ekstrom, Glassheim, Grande, and Rennerfeldt.

A quorum was declared by the Speaker.

CELEBRATING OUR VETERANS' SERVICE BY ERIN DOERNER

The water under the boat churned, frothy and cold. Wind softly lifted the birds and the sun gleamed with honor and authority. My stomach turned and I lifted my head. Almost there, I thought, almost there. The film had been long and sad and I figured the real thing had to be similar. But it wasn't.

I remember stepping on to the platform. Everything was white: the walls, the floor, the polo shirts on the tour guides. But the water was dark and the sky was blue and the blood that had spilt from these men's veins was red. It had long ago disappeared into the rusty ship, out of sight and into the murky depths of the ocean. Oil bubbles still float up to the surface; they have been for sixty three years. I'm only seventeen.

I tried to take a photo of the bubbles, beautiful and terrible at the same time. Their rainbow rings spread across the water like drops of blood. Or perhaps tears. I'm sure that many tears have fallen into those waves, beside whispered prayers and placed sighs. This is hallowed ground, I thought. A cemetery for 1,102 souls. My eyes filled with tears but I hid them behind my camera, efficiently snapping shots of the view. I had been wandering around for a while when I suddenly felt the need to stop right where I was. Looking up, I saw the American flag flying directly above my head. The sun was right above it and the beams that were the ceiling of the memorial formed a frame around the subject. I lifted my camera. The edges of the flag were worn and frayed, much like the heart of a weary and tired soldier. But the colors were bright and constant, steadfast in their duty of proclaiming American honor over the watery graves. "Thank you," I whispered into the breeze and the flag rippled with dignity in the sunlight. I knew I had been heard.

I don't know if I will ever get to visit Pearl Harbor again in my life. The time I spent there was minimal compared to the time spent there by others, yet I feel like it was, and will remain to be, one of the most moving experiences I have every encountered. I was on a high school band tour and it was the first stop in a busy day of sightseeing. Yet it stands out completely from the rest of the trip. Seeing the U.S.S. Arizona Memorial with my peers and classmates made me realize that we are no different than those who lived and died for their country so many years ago. We have the same feelings, the same job, the same pain, the same uniting bond that makes us Americans. It also made me think of the thousands and thousands of veterans of other wars and other conflicts; people who courageously and unselfishly gave up so much in order to guarantee the safety of this great country. Both of my grandfathers were in the Korean War. I am here because of them.

What is it that makes a person willing to die for his country? What is it that moves her to give up security, family, the comforts of home for an unknown land, teeming with horror and violence? What drives a person to stay in the trenches? To lift one's neighbor over one's shoulder when blood is seeping from one's own wounds? To stay calm in the face of danger, to stay open in the face of diversity, to stay ready in the face of attack, to stay at all when so many are retreating to safety? What does it take? Something extraordinary.

I am not a powerful leader who creates law. I am not a history teacher who shares the bravery of these veterans with classrooms of students. I am not an architect who designs beautiful memorials and monuments. I am not a poet who writes sonnets and love songs as a tribute to the dead. I am not the President, not a mother, not a widow, not the daughter of a POW or MIA. I am not an officer or a sailor or a soldier. I am a young girl who can thank her veterans by whispering "thank you" into the wind. If that is all I can do to celebrate my veterans' service, then I will be honored to do it.

Celebrating Our Veterans' Service is an important theme that should be manifest in our daily lives. This country was built on the sweat, blood and determination of our forefathers and for 229 years, America has been defended and protected by those who love her.

MOTION

REP. MONSON MOVED that a committee of two be appointed to escort the Honorable Byron Dorgan, United States Senator, to the podium, which motion prevailed. The Speaker appointed Rep. Berg and Rep. Boucher to such committee.

REMARKS BY SENATOR BYRON DORGAN

MR. SPEAKER AND Members of the House, first of all thank you for inviting me once again. I am always honored to come by when you are in session and have the opportunity to say hello. I know from working in the Capitol how frenetic it is. You, unlike the U.S. Congress in which bills are introduced and never heard, never seen again, you have to deal with bills and run them through the committees, vote on them, bring them through the committees, it is indeed very impressive.

The U.S. Congress by contrast, starts slow and slows down. We are at the start of a new Congress. We have a lot to confront us. Let me also begin, no matter how one feels about foreign policy and what is happening around the world, the expression yesterday by the Iraqis' to go to the polls; should give all of us who participate in a democracy an enormous amount of pride. The dignity of a person casting a vote anywhere in this world as a matter of self expression and especially the courage it took for some people to show up at the polls yesterday in Iraq is really something extraordinary. I think all of us should take great pride.

Perhaps in all of the time that I have had the privilege of coming to visit with you during my service in the US House and the US Senate, we have never had the major and, I think, unusual challenges that now confront our state. Let me describe a few of these to you.

First on February 7, the President will give us his presidential budget for the next fiscal year. In the past year, our fiscal policy deficit is 567 billion dollars, that is serious. It has been a record that is serious and we have to get our fiscal policy back on track. The President's budget from all that we are hearing will propose significant and major spending for law enforcement, water development, agriculture. The most important to the State Legislature here in Bismarck is Medicaid because the federal government funds about 2/3 of the Medicaid payment here in North Dakota. We have about 55,000 low income people in this state and children who benefit from Medicaid payments. By the way, the issue of how much we spend to fund Medicaid is very very important to our state. My expectation is that is going to be a big issue.

The second is base closing. May 16 Secretary Rumsfeld offers his version of what bases are to be closed in this country. They indicate that we have a 25 percent over capacity in military bases. A twenty-five percent over capacity and Secretary Rumsfeld expects this round to equal the closures in the previous four rounds combined. This will be a very aggressive base closing round. We have two great air force bases in North Dakota, one in Minot and one in Grand Forks, and we have the best Air National Guard Unit, I think, in the country, the Happy Hooligans in Fargo. The communities have done all they can, they have worked very hard. I will be in Minot meeting with the base retention group there. I commend all three communities, the congressional delegation, the governor, the state legislators, we have all worked together to be as prepared as we can for this base closing round. This happens very quickly. This will happen from May to September. The reason we have so much at stake here in North Dakota are the consequences of closing a base. Some studies suggest regional unemployment of 20% to 30%. This will play out from May 16 through September 8. I fervently hope that we can get through this round of closings.

Third, No Child Left Behind could have significant consequences for you. It's just a slogan of course, but it is a slogan that represents the title to some legislation. None of you have ever heard the other view, representing leaving a child behind. This slogan of No Child Left Behind is a slogan of accountability. We spend a lot of money on education and all of us aspire to see that there will be accountability for it. My great concern, however, having voted for the legislation, is that a. there is not sufficient funding for it and b. no flexibility. You can't put a template over a school in downtown New York that is identical to one over a school in Newtown or Mott. We need flexibility. The day after tomorrow, I am meeting with the assistant secretary of education on the subject, for example, what is "highly qualified" for elementary teachers in North Dakota? They have made an initial determination, that here in North Dakota, despite the fact that 3800 elementary school teachers have a license to teach, have a bachelor's degree, and are teaching in their major, which is elementary education, and have experience in the classroom, they are not necessarily "highly qualified". In my judgement that defies common sense. We have put some kids out of those classrooms with some of the highest scores in the world on tests. In fact, in one embassy we would have the second highest scores in the world. So you can't tell me that teachers that are teaching those kids are not highly qualified. And despite the fact that I voted for that law, I will say this that if we don't get some common sense in it's application, then I intend to introduce legislation to repeal it.

Finally, let me talk just one moment about Social Security. I know the President is coming to North Dakota on Thursday. I welcome him, it is an honor. Air Force One touches down in North Dakota and we welcome him. I have great respect for the President on this issue. I want to tell you with great respect, while I don't agree that there should be private accounts, I believe our responsibility is to strengthen and preserve social security systems as the core insurance for retirement and to further incentivize private investment accounts. Such as 401k's, IRA's, and private pension plans. There aren't many states that have more at stake in this debate than North Dakota. We have the fifth oldest population in America. We have a higher percentage of persons 85 years or older than any other state. I feel very strongly, the program that has lifted many thousands of people out of poverty over many years, a program according to the congressional budget office will remain solvent until the year 2052, a program without major surgery and without major change will be solvent for the long term, a program that does need some adjustment because people are living healthier, longer lives, which is good news. I believe, very strongly, with respect to retirement security you need a foundation. The foundation for us has been social security insurance retirement programs. The second and third stories are to substantially incentivize pensions, 401's, IRA's, and private accounts. While I think what we ought to do, is preserve and strengthen social security as a core insurance program, I also feel strongly that we ought to create second and third stories of retirement security and create a retirement investment bonus plan that further strengthens and further incentivizes those who are putting away money for their retirement with tax credits that are aggressive in which we now use. It is worthy to have a great debate, and I commend the President for it, but there are very strong feelings on both sides of the aisle and sometimes mixing feelings on both sides of the aisle. I feel that it is in our state's and country's interest to preserve and strengthen social security and to build upon it through tax incentives private investment account.

Finally, let me mention the issue of the Red River Valley Research Corridor. About 4 years ago, I called a meeting in Fargo and invited the presidents of most of our colleges to attend. I had Governor Hoeven attend and we had a good meeting. Instead of sending our best and brightest kids to work on world class research and cutting edge research in California, New York, Texas and Massachusetts, I suggested we create world class opportunities here in our state. I think we made significant progress in just a matter of several years. You are a part of that progress, you created some funding at the state level, and I believe that working together, we can do something very significant. I remember, in the back of these Chambers, when there was discussion about something John Odegaard wanted to do. My late friend John Odegaard wanted to build the Harvard of the skies here in North Dakota to have one of the world class centers of aviation. People called him about half goofy for suggesting that could happen up here in the center of the country. A small state, a small population. Do you know what he did, John Odegaard built a world class center for aviation science and we have one of the finest in the entire world right here. I went to meet with the President of Taiwan, and he said our university trains their air pilots. Around the world they know what we created here. The fact is we can create something else, a research corridor that instead of having our kids leave, they can stay here and work here in areas of microtechnology and the new areas of nanotechnology and carbon nanotubes. We should be able to look back in ten years and see that we have done something extraordinary, not for just our two major universities, but the tentacles reach out to our other colleges.

Finally, last Thursday I went to visit a young soldier at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D.C. He is a young man that I nominated for West Point about ten years ago. He is a Captain in the Army and was in Iraq and was injured severely. He lost his leg and is in critical condition and was airvacced out of Iraq. He is still in intensive care. I went to see his family and they said they wanted me to look in on him. I looked in the doorway and his eyes were only half opened and he has tubes hanging all over him and I gave him the thumbs up sign and he saluted me. He, like so many in this country, have answered the call and don't complain, they represent the best in America. I think even as we agree and disagree in this democracy, we ought to always think about those who made the sacrifice for America's freedom. I encourage you to work on veterans' issues as we will continue to work in Congress because there are men and women who are in intensive care, some on the critical list, some on the battlefield, some just starting training who are willing to stand up and be counted for. Thank you very much.

MOTION

REP. MONSON MOVED that Senator Dorgan's remarks be printed in the Journal, which motion prevailed.
