POINT OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

REP. BOUCHER: Mr. Speaker: I rise on a point of personal privilege.

I would like to take a moment of this body's time this afternoon to acknowledge this very significant day in the history of this great nation.

Today the 44th president in the history of our republic was sworn in. We have witnessed the transition of executive power and leadership with minimal conflict or interruptions on 44 occasions for 220 years. This is a legacy that few nations and societies in the history of humanity have been able to accomplish.

Borrowing two symbolic words spoken by our newly sworn in President Barack Obama; today is symbolic of the monumental accomplishments of our "patchwork heritage."

We have witnessed in intimate detail the success of a society and a political democracy that has evolved from a huge human melting pot of races, creeds, and diversities. This has been accomplished in an orderly fashion and with utmost dignity.

We congratulate President Obama for what he has accomplished. We wish him the best of luck as he moves forward with his duties as our 44th president; and join him working together to fulfill the continued legacy of our "patchwork heritage"...God bless America.
