Senate Bill No. 202 is permissive legislation. Until an agreement is drawn between North Dakota and the federal government there will be no cost to the State. When such an agreement becomes effective the cost of licensing and inspecting the approximate 45 present radiation sources will be under $1,500. This cost can be absorbed by the State Health Department's present Radiological Health Program, which receives annually about $15,000 federal funds. No license fee will be charged; therefore there will be no potential income from this legislation.
