HB 1285 Testimony Senate Appropriations Committee

Good morning Chair Holmberg and members of the Appropriations Committee.

HB 1285 is enacting legislation to create a North Dakota specific America 250 Commission, to commemorate the 250 years since America's founding. Five years ago, Congress established a national America 250 Commission, who briefed former Vice President Pence of their work last January.

Attached is a letter I, and other legislative leaders received in early March of 2020 encouraging North Dakota to plan our own events for our nation's 250th anniversary in 2026. In all honestly, I didn't pay much attention to the letter as we were just starting to aggressively address issues related to COVID-19 in state. Fortunately, a north Fargo neighbor of mine, Sandy Sidler, serves as a regent for the ND State Society Daughters of the American Revolution and reached out to me this past fall to see if North Dakota could get a Commission started.

While there are still five years until our nation's 250th anniversary, enacting a Commission in the coming biennium will allow the Commission to begin the early work of laying the foundation for how cities, townships, school districts, Veterans groups, businesses and nonprofits throughout the state can be a part of a much more in depth planning during the 2023-25 biennium to implement at least a year's worth of commemoration between July 2025 and July 2026. Additionally, to receive major regional or national exhibits, galleries and museums may need to reserve such exhibits three to five years from when they plan to have them displayed.

As you see in section 1 of the bill, a comprehensive list of state agencies, relevant statewide nonprofits and representatives from our Congressional delegation are being invited to provide leadership on the Commission to ensure it is as comprehensive as possible. The House Appropriations committee did remove a representative from each legislative caucus. In consultation with the state historical society, several of these entities were a part of the planning of our state's 125th Anniversary leading up to 2014 celebration.

Subsection 2 of Section 2 allows the Commission to fundraise and receive funds from various entities to diversity funding sources. It is anticipated that the national America 250 Commission may have resources from Congress to help support state efforts, which is why it is important to have representatives from our Congressional delegation offices as part of the Commission. Additionally, funds from private foundations, nonprofits, individuals, corporations, and government entities may help offset any local match requirements. The attached fiscal note, prepared by the state historical society, identifies $25,000 in General Fund spending to begin the Commission's work over the next biennium. Mr. Chair and members of the Committee, as the subcommittee continues to work on the Historical Societies' budget bill, HB 1018, I request that you add $25,000 to their operating budget to cover this so it does not become an unfunded mandate to the agency.

Without a fundraising or development plan in place, for the purposes of the fiscal note, $500,000 in General Fund spending for next biennium is projected to receive an equal amount from Congress. As the development plan and more details are provided by the national America 250 Commission, the state Commission will be able to provide a more accurate request for the 23-25 biennium inclusive of expected non-General Fund dollars to offset General Fund impact.

Attached to my testimony, are examples of how other states have already enacted their initial plans for their state's America 250 Commission.

Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, the creation of a North Dakota specific America 250 Commission will allow us to tell the story of North Dakota over the past 250 years, which of course includes over a century before statehood. As our nation prepares to celebrate 250 years of democracy, we will be able to make significant contributions to those discussions in every corner of the state. School districts may bolster civics and history curriculum, communities may have one time or ongoing discussion of what being an American means to them, traveling exhibits may meander throughout the state to provide more North Dakotans an opportunity to learn and reflect and most importantly, we, as a state will be able to collectively reaffirm our commitment to democracy, civil discourse and the opportunity for freedom for all.

I appreciate the committee's consideration of this legislation and hope that you can assist in developing a solution.

Dear North Dakota Leaders:

I have the honor of serving as Chairman of the U.S. Semiquincentennial Commission, which is the official government body established by Congress to prepare an overall program for commemorating the 250th anniversary of the United States.

The Commission is charged with planning and coordinating observances and activities associated with the 250th anniversary throughout the country. The Commission will be at the center of a network of federal, state, territorial, and local entities working together to make the 250th a once-in-a-lifetime experience for all Americans.

After a comprehensive 16-month strategic planning process, we completed our statutory requirement of submitting a Strategic Plan and Report to the President on December 31, 2019. On January 15, 2020, Vice President Pence invited members of the Commission to the White House to present an overview of our work along with a copy of the report.

This initiative, which will be referred to commonly as ‘America 250’, anticipates nearly 137,000 programs—the vast majority of which will be state- and territory-led initiatives resulting in billions of dollars in resources that will ripple through our local, state, territorial, and national economies. America 250 is organizing itself to support those state and territorial efforts.

State- and territorial-level involvement is the Commission’s top priority. Several states have created Semiquincentennial entities to administer and organize their 250th programming. We strongly encourage you to establish an entity so that we can begin to work with you in commemorating the 250th. We stand ready to provide our advice and support.

As referenced in the enabling legislation, I look forward to working with you to discuss America 250 and how we can coordinate in engaging nearly 350,000,000 of our fellow Americans in the largest event in our history.

Please contact me or Frank Giordano, Executive Director of the U.S. Semiquincentennial Commission, at fgiordano@america250.gov or 202-871-1776 to schedule a time when we can meet.

I look forward to working with you and your state on this historic undertaking.

Sincerely,

July 4, 2026 will mark 250 years since the United States of America declared its independence as a nation. As this momentous anniversary approaches, Americans have an unparalleled opportunity to reflect on our past, to celebrate the rich tapestry of our present, and to advance the promise of our democracy for future generations.

About America 250

Congress established the U.S. Semiquincentennial Commission to lead the nationwide commemoration of this historic milestone. The America 250 Foundation, a 501c3 nonprofit, serves as the operational arm of the Commission, leading its programs, events, and partnerships.

The Commission and the Foundation envision the America 250 commemoration as a monumental, multiyear initiative, engaging each and every American in what we expect to be the largest and most inclusive anniversary observance in our nation's history.

Our Vision

The Commission and Foundation are planning for an America 250 commemorative period that will:

- Take place during the years 2020 through 2027;
- Consider the full scope of American history, from the pre-revolutionary era to today;
- Engage all states, territories, tribes, and communities across the country, as well as millions of friends worldwide;
- Focus on the themes of Educate, Engage, and Unite;
- Include several national signature programs and spark more than 100,000 grassroots programs across the country; and
- Attract billions of dollars in resources to local, state, territorial, and national economies.

Commemorating Nationwide

The Commission and Foundation are encouraging each U.S. state and territory, as well as the District of Columbia, to form its own semiquincentennial commission or state-designated entity to plan for the nation's 250th anniversary. We aim to work closely with each of these state and territorial entities to facilitate coordination and collaboration, and to ensure the broadest possible participation and visibility as our country recognizes this historic moment.

Partnering with States and Territories

Most state and territorial commissions are being created by legislation or executive order. Once your state or territory has formed its commission or official entity, establishing an official partnership with the U.S. Semiquincentennial Commission and the America 250 Foundation will provide many benefits and opportunities, including:

- Participating in a Nationwide Coalition: The Commission and Foundation will facilitate a coalition of all official state and territorial semiquincentennial entities, allowing states and territories to connect, collaborate, and exchange information.
- Reinforcing Consistent Themes: The Commission and Foundation can provide guidance to the state and territorial commissions on how to incorporate the national themes of Educate, Engage, and Unite into state- and territory-based planning. The Commission and Foundation also welcome the opportunity to receive input from each state and territory to ensure the national effort helps to amplify the unique themes selected by the states and territories.
- Expanding Visibility and Awareness: The Commission and Foundation look forward to using our national platform to promote activities in the states and territories through press, social media, e-newsletters, website content, partner programs, and more.
- Co-Branding Efforts: The Commission and Foundation will create official "America 250" logos tailored to each state and territory that we can offer to each official state and territorial semiquincentennial entity.
- Enhancing Fundraising: The Commission and Foundation aim to enhance states' and territories' semiquincentennial fundraising efforts through co-branding.
- Partnering on National Signature Programs: The Commission and Foundation will coordinate national signature programs to be conducted across the U.S. throughout the commemorative period, and each state and territorial commission will have the chance to co-sponsor any national signature programs within its state or territory.
- Increasing Economic Development: The Commission and Foundation expect that states' and territories' partnership with the national commemoration effort will increase tourism and economic development opportunities in each state and territory.

The U.S. Semiquincentennial Commission and the America 250 Foundation stand ready to partner with your state or territory to achieve our shared goals over the next several years. We look forward to working with you to honor your state's or territory's unique story and contributions during this once-in-a-lifetime observance. AMERICA 250 FOUNDATION

States' Acts Establishing Entities To Commemorate
The 250th Anniversary of American Independence

Eleven states have already established entities responsible for administering and organizing their individual commemorations of the 250th anniversary of our nation's founding with several others in the process of doing so.

The entities take one of two forms (or a hybrid of the two):

1. Direct an existing executive agency to plan, create, and administer the state's celebrations.
2. Create a new commission to plan, create, and administer the state's celebrations.

Legislation and executive language that established entities follows the brief summaries.

The national semiquincentennial commemoration is expected to include elements that increase emphasis on history education, particularly America's founding principles and documents, as well as preservation of, and visitation to historical parks and other cultural sites. The state entities which have been created emphasize the role of history education and tourism in their commemorations in varying degrees.

Alabama

The Alabama USA Semiquincentennial Commission. The commission was created through legislation and consists of 11 members including the governor, two members appointed by the governor, two members appointed by the lieutenant governor, four members appointed by the legislature, and two Alabamians serving as members of the US Semiquincentennial Commission. The American Village would be the "celebration capitol."

The commission is charged with promoting awareness and understanding of the principles of the Declaration of Independence, the winning of American independence, and of the establishment of America's system of constitutional self-government. This includes teaching students and increasing public knowledge and appreciation of the breadth of American history, the quest for "liberty and justice for all" including stories and contributions of the various people throughout American history and emphasizing the service and sacrifices of veterans.

Kentucky

The Kentucky American Independence Semiquincentennial Commission was created through executive order. The commission is attached to the governor's office and serves as an advisory body to the Governor and the Secretary of Tourism, Arts, and Heritage Cabinet.

The commission consists of nine members:

- The Secretary of State
- The President of the Senate
- The Speaker of the House
- The Chair of the Historic Properties Commission
- The Chair of the Heritage Council
- The Secretary of Tourism, Arts, and Heritage Cabinet
- Three members appointed by the Governor

The Chair of the Commission is appointed by the Governor.

Maryland

The Maryland Semiquincentennial Commission was created through executive order. The commission is administered by the Maryland Department of Planning and the Governor's Coordinating Offices. It is authorized to enter into a partnership with a tax-exempt organization in its work.

The commission consists of up to 29 members: 16 ex officios; 6 members of the general public appointed by the governor; 2 members appointed by the President of the Maryland Senate; 2 members appointed by the speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates, and; up to 3 members of nonprofit organizations.

The Chair of the Commission is appointed by the Governor.

Among other things, the commission is charged with: developing an inclusive commemoration of the 250th anniversary of the United States and all its people through civic, cultural, and historical education, events, and programming; promoting the preservation of cultural and historical resources, and; creating model curriculum about the Revolutionary War period.

Michigan

The governor has tasked the Michigan History Center and the Historical Society of Michigan to prepare that state's commemoration of the 250th anniversary.

New Jersey

Enacted legislation in New Jersey directs the existing New Jersey Historical Commission to create a program to celebrate the 250th anniversary of the independence of the United States.

The legislation calls for the commission to enter into a contract with a [non-profit] private entity...to coordinate and plan the programs and observances of the State's semiquincentennial celebration" and calls for the establishment of an "advisory council" to support and guide the work of this public-private partnership, in part through fundraising assistance and promoting collaboration with state agencies.

New Jersey's bill also provides a $500,000 annual appropriation to support semiquincentennial programs and staffing through June 30, 2028, $200,000 of which is earmarked for the New Jersey Historical Commission, with the remaining $300,000 to go to the state's selected non-profit partner.

North Carolina

The North Carolina USA 250th Committee was created through executive action. The committee is led by the Department of Natural and Cultural Resources and includes representatives from several public and private organizations.

Representatives from the following organizations are members of the committee:

- State chapters of the Society of Cincinnati, Sons of the American Revolution, Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Colonial Dames
- The North Carolina Museums Council and Federation of North Carolina Historical Societies
- Reenactor organizations
- The Division of State Historic Sites, the Division of State History Museums, and Tryon Palace
- The Historic Preservation Office, the Office of State Archaeology, and the Office of Historical Research and Publications
- Old Salem, Historic Bethania, Historic Murfreesboro, Historic Edenton, and Historic Hillsborough, and the Friends of the Moore's Creek Battlefield
- The land preservation community
- The North Carolina Commission on Indian Affairs and the North Carolina African American Heritage Commission
- The Blue Ridge National Heritage Area
- The Department of Public Instruction
- The State Library; and
- The National Park Service
- The North Carolina Humanities Council

Pennsylvania

Legislation in Pennsylvania created a new entity entitled the Pennsylvania Commission for the United States Semiquincentennial.

The legislation directs the new commission “to plan, encourage, develop and coordinate the commemoration of the 250th anniversary of the founding of the United States, Pennsylvania’s integral role in that event and the impact of its people on the nation’s past, present and future.”

Pennsylvania’s legislation specifies the size of its commission and who shall have authority to appoint commission members. The governor and certain legislative leaders have the power to make a specified number of appointments. The commission is to be comprised primarily of private citizens, along with several legislators, and ex-officio members primarily representing executive branch agencies.

The chairperson of the commission may hire staff for the commission.

The commission “may accept, use and dispose of gifts and donations of money, property or personal services... procure supplies, services and property...make contracts” and “expend...funds donated or received.”

South Carolina

Legislation in South Carolina created a new entity entitled the South Carolina American Revolution Sestercentennial Commission.

It vests in the commission the authority to “plan and execute...a proper observance of the Sestercentennial of the American Revolution in South Carolina, and in cooperation with the South Carolina Battleground Preservation Trust; a national organization, if any; and other similar commemorative organizations in other states.”

South Carolina’s legislation specifies the size of its commission and who shall have authority to appoint commission members. The governor and certain legislative leaders have the power to make a specified number of appointments. The commission is to be comprised of the Governor of South Carolina, the Chairman of the South Carolina Archives and History Commission, the Director of the South Carolina Department of Parks, Recreation and Tourism, and individuals appointed by the governor and state legislative leaders.

The staff of the commission consists of the staffs of the South Carolina Department of Parks, Recreation and Tourism and the South Carolina Department of Archives and History as well as other individuals hired by the commission.

Funding for the commission shall be determined and provided by the South Carolina General Assembly.

Tennessee

Legislation in Tennessee created a new entity entitled the Tennessee Commission for the United States Semiquincentennial Commission.

The legislation directs the commission to “plan, encourage, develop, and coordinate the commemoration of the 250th anniversary of the founding of the United States, and recognize Tennessee's integral role in that event and the impact of its people on the nation's past, present, and future.”

Tennessee’s legislation specifies the size of its commission and that it would consist of ex-officio members consisting of legislators, state officials, the president of the Tennessee Sons of the Revolution, and the state regent of the Tennessee Society, Daughters of the American Revolution.

The commission “may accept, use, and dispose of gifts and donations of money, property, or personal services... procure supplies, services, and property” and “expend...funds donated or received in pursuance of contracts.”

Vermont

The Vermont 250th Anniversary Commission was created by executive order to commemorate “the historic events that preceded and are associated with the 250th anniversary of the American Revolution in the State of Vermont, in celebration of our present and in anticipation of the promising future of” Vermont.

The commission is limited to no more than 14 members and include the Commissioner of the Vermont Department of Tourism and Marketing, the State Historic Preservation Officer, the State Librarian, a representative of the Vermont Historical Society, and a representative from the University of Vermont. In addition, nine members shall be appointed by the Governor including a Revolutionary War historian, a member of a Revolutionary War reenactment group, a representative of the Vermont Commission on Native American Affairs, and a representative of a Vermont history museum. The State Historic Preservation Officer serves as the Chair.

The Commission may designate nonprofit entities to accept private donations and public funds, grants, and donations.

Virginia

Legislation in Virginia created a new entity entitled the American Revolution 250 Commission as an advisory body in the executive branch.

The legislation directs the new commission “formulate and implement a program for the inclusive observance of the 250th anniversary of the independence of the United States and the Revolutionary War in Virginia.”

Virginia’s legislation specifies the size of its commission at 22 members consisting of 17 citizens and five ex officio representatives. The governor has the authority to appoint 12 members derived from a list provided by two state history organizations, four history organizations designate one member each, the American Battlefield Trust designates one member, and the Virginia Bar Association designates one member.

The commission is required to create an advisory council, led by a commission member, composed of citizen members who have a knowledge of relevant history or expertise.

A chairman and vice chairman of the commission will be elected by the commission’s membership.

The commission “solicit, accept, use, and dispose of funds appropriated by the General Assembly and any gifts, grants, donations, bequests, or other funds received by the Commission for the purpose of aiding or facilitating its work.”
