

There's no reason that wild horses shouldn't be allowed to graze.

We've been dealing with these large ranchers in various states who believe their cattle should be allowed to graze wherever, then they're rewarded when something happens to their cattle that THEY are supposed to be dealing with. This feels like the same issue.

And at the same time, we are supposed to remove wildlife for them or corporations, regardless of what 'their' definition of 'wildlife' is. They are useful wildlife that deserve to stay where they are.

Please keep them protected!
