

Members of the Senate Human Services Committee,

For close to a decade, there has been a concerted effort by gender activists to redefine what it is to be a man or a woman. This has led to the widespread implementation of gender identity policies that place real women at risk and increase the unique dangers and disadvantages females face. Codifying a clear and accurate definition of what constitutes a woman is more important than ever as gender activists recently rolled out their latest invented term. Women+ is now being used to favorably describe males who appropriate womanhood, occupy female-only spaces, and steal female opportunities. This term is even being promoted by the University of North Dakota in its Council for Women+.

People have the right to identify how they they want in their private lives, but public policy and the protection of rights must be based on objective reality, not subjective ideology. Males cannot be women no matter how hard they may try, and therefore they should never be given access to female-only spaces and opportunities. This resolution is a much-needed recognition of women's sex-based rights and therefore, I urge a do pass recommendation for HCR 3010.

Thank you for your consideration of my testimony.
