29           state.

1       6-08.6-02. Scope - Choice of law - Forum.

- 2       1. This chapter applies to a special deposit under an account agreement that states the 3       intention of the parties to establish a special deposit governed by this chapter, 4       regardless of whether a party to the account agreement or a transaction related to the 5       special deposit, or the special deposit itself, has a reasonable relation to this state.
6       2. The parties to an account agreement may choose a forum in this state for settling a 7       dispute arising out of the special deposit, regardless of whether a party to the account
8       agreement or a transaction related to the special deposit, or the special deposit itself, 9       has a reasonable relation to this state.
10      3. This chapter does not affect:
11      a. A right or obligation relating to a deposit other than a special deposit under this 12      chapter; or
13      b. The voidability of a deposit or transfer that is fraudulent or voidable under other 14      law.

15      6-08.6-03. Variation by agreement or amendment.

- 16      1. The effect of sections 6-08.6-01 through 6-08.6-05, 6-08.6-07 through 6-08.6-10, and 17      6-08.6-13 may not be varied by agreement, except as provided in those sections.
18      Subject to subsection 2, the effect of sections 6-08.6-06, 6-08.6-11, and 6-08.6-12 may 19      be varied by agreement.
20      2. A provision in an account agreement or other record that substantially excuses liability 21      or substantially limits remedies for failure to perform an obligation under this chapter is 22      not sufficient to vary the effect of a provision of this chapter.
23      3. If a beneficiary is a party to an account agreement, the bank or credit union and the 24      depositor may amend the agreement without the consent of the beneficiary only if the 25      agreement expressly permits the amendment.
26      4. If a beneficiary is not a party to an account agreement and the bank or credit union 27      and the depositor know the beneficiary has knowledge of the agreement's terms, the 28      bank or credit union and the depositor may amend the agreement without the consent
29      of the beneficiary only if the amendment does not adversely and materially affect a 30      payment right of the beneficiary.

1       5. If a beneficiary is not a party to an account agreement and the bank or credit union
2           and the depositor do not know whether the beneficiary has knowledge of the 3           agreement's terms, the bank or credit union and the depositor may amend the 4           agreement without the consent of the beneficiary only if the amendment is made in 5           good faith.

6       6-08.6-04. Requirements for special deposit.

7       A deposit is a special deposit if it is:

- 8       1. A deposit of funds in a bank or credit union under an account agreement;
9       2. For the benefit of at least two beneficiaries, one or more of which may be a depositor;
10      3. Denominated in a medium of exchange that is currently authorized or adopted by a 11           domestic or foreign government;
12      4. For a permissible purpose stated in the account agreement; and 13      5. Subject to a contingency.

14      6-08.6-05. Permissible purpose.

- 15      1. A special deposit must serve at least one permissible purpose stated in the account 16           agreement from the time the special deposit is created in the account agreement until 17           termination of the special deposit.
18      2. If, before termination of the special deposit, the bank or credit union or a court
19           determines the special deposit no longer satisfies subsection 1, sections 6-08.6-07 20           through 6-08.6-10 cease to apply to any funds deposited in the special deposit after 21           the special deposit ceases to satisfy subsection 1.
22      3. If, before termination of a special deposit, the bank or credit union determines the 23           special deposit no longer satisfies subsection 1, the bank or credit union may take 24           action the bank or credit union believes is necessary under the circumstances, 25           including terminating the special deposit.

26      6-08.6-06. Payment to beneficiary by bank or credit union.

- 27      1. Unless the account agreement provides otherwise, the bank or credit union is 28           obligated to pay a beneficiary if there are sufficient actually and finally collected funds 29           in the balance of the special deposit.
30      2. Except as provided in subsection 3, the obligation to pay the beneficiary is excused if 31           the funds available in the special deposit are insufficient to cover the payment.

1       3. Unless the account agreement provides otherwise, if the funds available in the special
2       deposit are insufficient to cover an obligation to pay a beneficiary, a beneficiary may 3       elect to be paid the funds that are available or, if there is more than one beneficiary, a
4       pro rata share of the funds available. Payment to the beneficiary making the election
5       under this subsection discharges the bank's or credit union's obligation to pay a 6       beneficiary and does not constitute an accord and satisfaction with respect to another
7       person obligated to the beneficiary.

8       4. Unless the account agreement provides otherwise, the obligation of the bank or credit 9       union obligated to pay a beneficiary is immediately due and payable.

10      5. The bank or credit union may discharge the bank's or credit union's obligation under 11      this section by:

12      a. Crediting another transaction account of the beneficiary; or 13      b. Taking other action that:

14           (1) Is allowed under the account agreement for the bank or credit union to 15           obtain a discharge; or

16           (2) Otherwise would constitute a discharge under law.

17      6. If the bank or credit union obligated to pay a beneficiary has incurred an obligation to 18      discharge the obligation of another person, the obligation of the other person is 19      discharged if action by the bank or credit union under subsection 5 would constitute a 20      discharge of the obligation of the other person under law that determines whether an 21      obligation is satisfied.

22      6-08.6-07. Property interest of depositor or beneficiary.

23      1. A depositor or a beneficiary does not have a property interest in the special deposit 24      itself.

25      2. The only property interest with respect to a special deposit is the right to receive
26      payment if the bank or credit union is obligated to pay a beneficiary. Any property 27      interest under this subsection is determined under other law.

28      6-08.6-08. When creditor process is enforceable against bank or credit union.

29      1. Subject to subsection 2, creditor process with respect to a special deposit is not 30      enforceable against the bank or credit union holding the special deposit.

- 1       2. Creditor process is enforceable against the bank or credit union holding a special
2       deposit with respect to an amount the bank or credit union is obligated to pay a 3       beneficiary or a depositor if the process:
- 4       a. Is served on the bank or credit union;
5       b. Provides sufficient information to allow the bank or credit union to identify the 6       depositor or the beneficiary from the bank's or credit union's books and records;
7       and
8       c. Gives the bank or credit union a reasonable opportunity to act on the process.
- 9       3. Creditor process served on a bank or credit union before it is enforceable against the 10      bank or credit union under subsection 2 does not create a right of the creditor against 11      the bank or credit union or a duty of the bank or credit union to the creditor. Other law 12      determines whether creditor process creates a lien enforceable against the beneficiary 13      on a contingent interest of a beneficiary, including a depositor as a beneficiary, even if 14      not enforceable against the bank or credit union.

15      6-08.6-09. Injunction or similar relief.

16      A court may enjoin, or grant similar relief that would have the effect of enjoining, a bank or 17      credit union from paying a depositor or beneficiary only if payment would constitute a material
18      fraud or facilitate a material fraud with respect to a special deposit.

19      6-08.6-10. Recoupment or set off.

- 20      1. Except as provided in subsection 2 or 3, a bank or credit union may not exercise a 21      right of recoupment or set off against a special deposit.
- 22      2. An account agreement may allow the bank or credit union to debit the special deposit:
- 23      a. When the bank or credit union becomes obligated to pay a beneficiary, in an 24      amount that does not exceed the amount necessary to discharge the obligation;
25      b. For a fee assessed by the bank or credit union that relates to an overdraft in the 26      special deposit account;
27      c. For costs incurred by the bank or credit union that relate directly to the special 28      deposit; or
29      d. To reverse an earlier credit posted by the bank or credit union to the balance of 30      the special deposit account, if the reversal occurs under an event or 31      circumstance warranted under other law governing mistake and restitution.

- 1       3. The bank or credit union holding a special deposit may exercise a right of recoupment
2           or set off against an obligation to pay a beneficiary, even if the bank or credit union
3           funds payment from the special deposit.

4       6-08.6-11. Duties and liability of bank or credit union.

- 5       1. A bank or credit union does not have a fiduciary duty to any person with respect to a 6           special deposit.
- 7       2. When the bank or credit union holding a special deposit becomes obligated to pay a 8           beneficiary, a debtor-creditor relationship arises between the bank or credit union and 9           beneficiary.
- 10      3. The bank or credit union holding a special deposit has a duty to a beneficiary to 11           comply with the account agreement and this chapter.
- 12      4. If the bank or credit union holding a special deposit does not comply with the account 13           agreement or this chapter, the bank or credit union is liable to a depositor or 14           beneficiary only for damages proximately caused by the noncompliance. Except as 15           provided by other law, the bank or credit union is not liable for consequential, special, 16           or exemplary damages.
- 17      5. The bank or credit union holding a special deposit may rely on records presented in 18           compliance with the account agreement to determine whether the bank or credit union 19           is obligated to pay a beneficiary.
- 20      6. If the account agreement requires payment on presentation of a record, the bank or 21           credit union shall determine within a reasonable time whether the record is sufficient to 22           require payment. If the agreement requires action by the bank or credit union on 23           presentation of a record, the bank or credit union is not liable for relying in good faith 24           on the genuineness of the record if the record appears on its face to be genuine.
- 25      7. Unless the account agreement provides otherwise, the bank or credit union is not 26           required to determine whether a permissible purpose stated in the agreement 27           continues to exist.

28      6-08.6-12. Term and termination.

- 29      1. Unless otherwise provided in the account agreement, a special deposit terminates five 30           years after the date the special deposit was first funded.

- 1       2. Unless otherwise provided in the account agreement, if the bank or credit union
2       cannot identify or locate a beneficiary entitled to payment when the special deposit is 3       terminated, and a balance remains in the special deposit, the bank or credit union
4       shall pay the balance to the depositor as a beneficiary.
5       3. A bank or credit union that pays the remaining balance as provided under subsection 2 6       has no further obligation with respect to the special deposit.

7       6-08.6-13. Principles of law and equity.

8       Title 41, consumer protection law, law governing deposits generally, law related to escheat
9       and abandoned or unclaimed property, and the principles of law and equity, including law
10      related to capacity to contract, principal and agent, estoppel, fraud, misrepresentation, duress,
11      coercion, mistake, and bankruptcy, supplement this chapter except to the extent inconsistent 12      with this chapter.

13      6-08.6-14. Uniformity of application and construction.

14      In applying and construing this chapter, a court shall consider the promotion of uniformity of 15      the law among the states that enact it.

16      SECTION 2. APPLICATION. This Act applies to:

- 17      1. A special deposit made under an account agreement executed after July 31, 2025;
18      and
19      2. A deposit made under an agreement executed before August 1, 2025, if:
20      a. All parties entitled to amend the agreement agree to make the deposit a special 21      deposit governed by chapter 6-08.6; and 22      b. The special deposit referenced in the amended agreement satisfies section 23      6-08.6-04.
