

Good Day,

The wild horse located in the U.S.A have been in North America longer than 500 years. Way before the 13 States. The wild (feral) horse has as much right to be left alone as any animal in the wild open spaces. In Fact they are a symbol of our way of life...free. Instead of rounding them up, in brutal ways to keep the herd in check, use artificial insemination! A lot less expensive...

The rancher's in our Country claim that wild horse herds on OUR pulic lands are hard on the inviorment, more so, than their cattle grazing our public lands. That's BS. I personally have seen how much cattle tear up land with their hoofs. If you are ever in the area of wild horses you will have a hard time telling that they have been around.

If ranchers want to raise cattle they need to keep them on THEIR land and off OUR land, the public lands. What makes the ranchers so special to have their cattle (live stock) graze public land. Cattle damage land. The wild horses make very little damage, if at all. I know. I was raised in the country, in Oregon, and have seen what cattle do to the land, creeks and streams, and along rivers. They dear it up!

Stop the ranchers from using our public lands and to leave the wild horses alone on their open (puplic) lands. Horses are very intilligent animals, not like a dumb cow.

Thank you for your time.
