CONSTITUTION

UVITED STATES OF AMERICA

Abstract

Fie, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution for the United States of dmerica.

Article 1.--The Congress.

31. All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a congress of the Crited States, which shall consist of a senate and house of representatives.
& 2 The house of representatives shall be composed of members chosen Herr second year by the people of the several states, and the electors in each mate shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous rrach of the state legislature.
$\lambda_{0}$ person shall be a representative who shall not have attained to the age uf treotr.five years, and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and vho shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state in which he shall be chosen.
Representatires and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several Nales which may be included within this union, according to their respective onobers. which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding lodians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons. The actual enumeration hall be made within three years after the first meeting of the congress of the Ionted states, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such mannper as they shall by law direct. The number of representatives shall not fliend one for every thirty thousand, but each state shall have at least one mpmentative; and until such enumeration shall be made, the state of New Hamphire shall be entitled to choose three, Massachusetts eight, Rhode Fland and Providence Plantations one, Connecticut five, New York six, New Ifrer four. Pennsylvania eight, Delaware one, Maryland six, Virginia ten, lonth Carolina five, South Carolina five, and Georgia three.
Then racancies happen in the representation from any state the executive uthrity thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.
The honse of representatives shall choose their speaker and other officers, and hall bave the sole power of impeachment.
32. The senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from fach state, chosen by the legislature thereof, for six years, and each nator shall have one vote.

CONSTITUTION OF THE LNITED STATES.

Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three classes. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year; of the second class, at the expiration of the fourth year; and of the third class, at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one-third may be chosen every second year; and if vacancies happen by resignation or otherwise, during the recess of the legislature of any state, the executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the legislature which shall then fill such vacancies.

No person shall be a senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state for which he shall be chosen.

The vice-president of the United States shall be president of the senate, but shall have no vote, unless they be equally divided.

The senate shall choose their other officers, and also a president pro tempore in the absence of the vice-president, or when he shall exercise the office of president of the United States.

The senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the president of the United States is tried, the chief justice shall preside, and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States; but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law.
§ 4. The times, places and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives, shall be prescribed in each state by the legislature thereof; but the congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing senators.

The congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.
§ 5. Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members. and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner and under such penalties as cach house may provide.

Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the members of either house on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

Neither house during the session of congress shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three dars, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting.
§6. The senators and representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the treasury of the United States. They shall in all cases, except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for anr speech or debate in either house, ther shall not be questioned in any other place.

CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

Sosenator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, rhich shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been incressed during such time; and no person holding any office under the United Nitates sball be a member of either house during his continuance in office.
§7. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representafires, but the senate may propose or concur with amendments as on other bills.
Frers bill which shall have passed the house of representatives and the * nate, shall, before it become a law, be presented to the president of the Coitel states; if he approve, he shall sign it, but if not, he shall return it, rith bis objections, to that house in which it shall have originated, who shall aner the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. 11. after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill. it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likerise be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of that house, it sall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by reas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and muinst the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If mr bill shall not be returned by the president within ten days (Sundays sirpted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, io lise manner as if he had signed it, unless the congress by their adjournment. prevent its return in which case it shall not be a law.
Erer order, resolution, or vote to which the concurrence of the senate and linue of representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournmeatl shall be presented to the president of the United States, and before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by bim shall be repassed by two-thirds of the senate and house of representatires. according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.
88. The congress shall have power:

To lay and collect tares, duties, imposts and excises, to pay the debts and proride for the common defense and general welfare of the United States; bot all duties, imposts and excises shall be uniform throughout the United states.

To borrow money on the credit of the United States.

To regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states, and with the Indian tribes.
To establish an uniform rule of naturalization, and uniform laws on the sobject of bankruptcies throughout the United States.
To coin moner. regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coin, and fix the randard of reights and measures.
To proride for the punishment of counterfeiting the securities and current ton of the C"nited States.
$T$ ) establish post offices and post roads.
To promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoreries.
To ronstitute tribunals inferior to the supreme court.
Todefine and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and offonse against the law of nations.
To declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and make rules conreoning captures on land and water.
To raise and support armies; but no appropriation of money to that use Wall be for a longer term than two years.
To proride and maintain a navy.
To make roles for the government and regulation of the land and naval fores.

To provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the union, suppress insurrections, and repel invasions.

To provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining the militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States, reserving to the states respectively the appointment of the officers and the authority of training the militia, according to the discipline prescribed by congress.

To exercise exclusive legislation, in all cases whatsoever, over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular states, and the acceptance of congress, become the seat of the government of the United States, and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the legislature of the state in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dock-yards, and other needful buildings; and,

To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers, and all other powers vested by this constitution in the government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof.
§ 9. The migration or importation of such persons as any of the states now existing shall think proper to admit, shall not be prohibited by the congress prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight, but a tax or duty may be imposed on such importation, not exceeding ten dollars for each person.

The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in cases of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require it.

No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed.
No capitation or other direct tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken.

No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any state.
No preference shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one state over those of another; nor shall vessels bound to, or from, one state, be obliged to enter, clear, or pay duties in another.

No money shall be drawn from the treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law; and a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money shall be published from time to time.

No title of nobility shall be granted by the United States; and no persou holding any office of profit or trust under them, shall, without the consent of the congress, accept of any present, emolument, office, or title, of any kind whatever, from any king, prince, or foreign state.
§ 10. No state shall enter into any treaty, alliance or confederation; grant letters of marque and reprisal ; coin money; emit bills of credit; make any thing but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts; pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts or grant any title of nobility.

No state shall, without the consent of the congress, lay any imports or duties on imports or exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its inspection laws; and the net produce of all duties and imposts. laid by any state on imports or exports, shall be for the use of the treasury of the United States; and all such laws shall be subject to the revision and control of the congress.

No state shall, without the consent of congress, lay any duty on tonnage, keep troops or ships of war in time of peace, enter into any agreement or compact with another state or with a foreign power or engage in war unless actually invaded, or in such imminent danger as will not admit of delar.

CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

Abticle 2.-The Executive.

§1. The executive power shall be vested in a president of the United sitates of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and, together with the vice-president, chosen for the same term, be elected as follons:
Each state shall appoint, in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the state may be entitled in the congress; but no mator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the Cnited Ntates, shall be appointed an elector.
The congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day oo rhich they shall give their votes; which day shall be the same throughout the Fnited States.
Xo person except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this constitution shall be eligible to the office of president; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not bare attained to the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a maident rithin the Cnited States.
In case of the removal of the president from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the vice-president, and the congress may by law proride for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the mesident and vice-president, declaring what officer shall then act as president, and soch officer shall act accordingly, until the disability be removed, or a pmasident shall be elected.
The president shall, at stated times, receive for his services a compensation, rbich shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which be shall bave been elected, and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States, or any of them.
Before he enters on the execution of his office, he shall take the following oath or afirmation:
"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the offlce of president of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States."
82. The president shall be commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the l'nited States, and of the militia of the several states when called into the actual service of the United States; he may require the opinion in writing of the principal officer in each of the executive departments, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices, and he shall have power to mant reprieles and pardons for offenses against the United States, except in rase of impeachment.
He shall have power. br and with the advice and consent of the senate, to adate treaties, provided two-thirds of the senators present concur; and he shall manioate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, shall appoint mbasadors, other public ministers and consuls, judges of the supreme court, and all other officers of the United States whose appointments are not herein therwise provided for, and which shall be established by law; but the "maness may by law vest the appointment of such inferior officers as ther think proper in the president alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments.
The president shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen Juning the recess of the senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session.
§3. He shall from time to time give to the congress information of the प्tate of the union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he *all jadge necessary and expedient; he may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both houses, or either of them, and in case of disagreement between them, with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper; he shall receive ambassadors and other publio ministers; he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed, and shall commission all the officers of the United States.
§ 4. The president, vice-president, and all civil officers of the United States shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors.

Article 3.-The Judiciary.

§ 1. The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one supreme court, and in such inferior courts as the congress may from time to time ordain and establish. The judges, both of the supreme and inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good behavior, and shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.
§ 2. The judicial power shall extend to all cases in law and equity, arising under this constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made under their authority; to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers, and consuls; to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; to controversies to which the United States shall be a party; to controversies between two or more states; between a state and citizens of another state; between citizens of different states; between citizens of the same state claiming lands under grants of different states, and between a state, or the citizens thereof, and foreign states, citizens or subjects.

In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, and those in which a state shall be party, the supreme court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other cases before mentioned, the supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions, and under such regulations as the congress shall make.

The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury; and such trial shall be held in the state where the said crime shall have been committed; but when not committed within any state, the trial shall be at such place or places as the congress may by law have directed.
§ 3. Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

The congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason, but no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood, or forfeiture except during the life of the person attainted.

Article 4.-The States and Territories.

§ 1. Full faith and credit shall be given in each state to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other state. And the congress may by general laws prescribe the manner in which such acts, records, and proceedings shall be proved, and the effect thereof.
§ 2. The citizens of each state shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several states.

A person charged in any state with treason, felony, or other crime, who shall flee from justice, and be found in another state, shall, on demand of the executive authority of the state from which he fled, be delivered up, to be removed to the state having jurisdiction of the crime.

No person held to service or labor in one state under the laws thereof, escaping into another, shall, in consequence of any law or regulation therein,

Abstract

Wedistarged from such service or labor, but shall be delivered up on claim of the party to whom such service or labor may be due. 83. Xew states may be admitted hy the congress into this union; but no urssate shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other state; wr any state be formed by the junction of two or more states, or parts of sates without the consent of the legislatures of the states concerned, as well roit the congress. The congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and meglations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United Bates: and nothing in this constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice mr claims of the United States, or of any particular state. if The L'ited States shall guarantee to every state in this union a repoblican form of government, and shall protect each of them against inssion, and on application of the legislature, or of the executive (when the hegislature cannot be convened), against domestic violence.

Abticle 5.-Amendments.

The congress, whenever two-thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary, call propose amendments to this constitution, or, on the application of the mpiplatures of two.thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for mpopaing amendments, which in either case, shall be valid to all intents and porpose as part of this constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of uneforths of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, x the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the congress; porided, that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thovand eight hundred and eight, shall in any manner affect the first and foorth clanses in the ninth section of the first article; and that no state, ritboot its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the senate.

Article 6.-Miscellaneous Provisions.

Abstract

All debts contracted and engagements entered into, before the adoption of this constitution, shall be as valid against the United States under this vanstitution as under the confederation. This constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in parsanace thereof, and all treaties made or which shall be made, under the artbority of the Cnited States, shall be the supreme law of the land; and the jidexe in every state shall be bound thereby, anything in the constitution or lars of ang state to the contrary notwithstanding. The senators and representatives before mentioned, and the members of the kereal state legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the Caited States and of the several states, shall be bound by oath or affirmation 0 mpport this constitution; but no religious test shall ever be required as a pulification to any office or public trust under the United States.

Article 7.-Ratification.

The ratification of the conventions of nine states shall be sufficient for the etrdbisbment of this constitution between the states so ratifying the same.

