INDEX

(References are to sections.)

In this Index, the entire contents of each section, and not merely the catchlines at the beginning, are indexed. The index lines are arranged in alphabetical order, including cross references to other places in the Index, either in the same subject or topic, indicated by ante or post, or to other subjects followed by the expression (this index). In preparing the Index, lines expressing the same thought have usually been drawn for at least two different subjects, sometimes many more, and in long subjects, several lines are frequently used, beginning with different distinctive words, so as to facilitate the finding of the matter desired.
