NOTE: This proposed rules amendment is in response to a suggestion that state constitutional amendments have a later deadline for introduction and federal constitutional amendments have an earlier deadline for introduction. Prior to 1983, the deadline for the introduction of both state and federal constitutional amendments was the thirty-third legislative day. The following paragraph from the minutes of the meeting of the Legislative Procedure and Arrangements Committee on January 21-22, 1982, provides the background concerning the change in the deadline for the introduction of state constitutional amendments:

The third question on the questionnaire asked whether legislators had any suggestions to improve standing committee procedures. One of the suggestions was that a definite time be established for the Committee on Constitutional Revision. Representative Kretschmar said some of the problems of that committee might be alleviated if there were an earlier deadline for the introduction of constitutional revision resolutions. He said the idea of this joint committee is to coordinate constitutional revision resolutions which appear on the ballot. Representative Strinden said perhaps the committee should consider various alternatives for the Constitutional Revision Committee. The chairman directed the staff to draft proposed rules changes to change the deadline for the introduction of resolutions calling for constitutional changes.
