REMARKS OF SENATOR AXNESS

MR. PRESIDENT: I stand before you today to recognize the achievements of athletes from every corner of the state who took to the hardwood this past weekend in pursuit of athletic glory.

Basketball fans across the United States hold the month of March sacred, as it brings the arrival of college and high school tournaments that call together some of the best young athletes in our nation and our state. But while we continue to celebrate the achievements of our high school athletes who took the court in Bismarck over the weekend, and Fargo this weekend, and as many of us fill in brackets with our NCAA tournament predictions, I am humbled at this opportunity to stand in recognition of another group of athletes who came together in gymnasiums up in Minot this past weekend, where North Dakota Special Olympics held its annual state basketball competition on Friday and Saturday.

When hundreds of Special Olympians gather from around the state, supported by family, friends and volunteers, there are a few things that you can be sure to find in abundance: courage, enthusiasm, sportsmanship, and wide smiles.

Special Olympics was founded in 1968 and now operates in 170 countries across the world. In North Dakota the organization has been operating since 1972, providing children and adults with disabilities, year-round opportunities to develop physical fitness, and as was self-evident in Minot, life-long friendships.

Mr. President, my family grew up in the excitement of Special Olympics. My older brother participated in bowling for many years taking us all across this great state to meet many great people. To this day we speak highly of the many friends we met along the way and the many memories we'll cherish the rest of our lives.

Ladies and gentleman, I would like to congratulate every participant of last weekend's tournament, and wish them continued success in their endeavors on and off the playing field, and say a special thank you to the volunteers and staff who make these events possible. The courage and collegiality displayed by these athletes is an example that we can all learn from.
