

STATE NURSING BOARD STRUCTURES

Boards of nursing are responsible for establishing the standards for safe nursing care and issuing licenses to practice nursing. The structure of state nursing boards within state government varies from board to board. According to a survey conducted by the National Council of State Boards of Nursing, Inc., the 50 state and District of Columbia boards of nursing are structured as follows:

- Nursing boards in 27 states are established as an independent state agency or entity.
- Nursing boards in 19 states and the District of Columbia operate under an “umbrella” state agency.
- Nursing boards in four states are semi-independent agencies or partially affiliated with a state agency.
